Fractional Marketing Lead for Qubik

Proposal for: Dominic Guinea, Qubik

Prepared by: Vinaygopal Mawandia · 9 November 2026

Covers: Qubik AI & Automation and Qubik Accounting: scope, ways of working, retainer and commission.

Based on our discussions, the details in Qubik's job post and my own assumptions, which we can confirm together.

Dominic,

Based on our discussions, the details in your job post and a few assumptions of my own, I'd like to propose working with Qubik as its part-time marketing lead for both businesses: Qubik AI & Automation and Qubik Accounting. I'd own lead generation, marketing support and the email, SMS and CRM automation that turns leads into revenue.

The role you advertised covers the AI side. Much of the early work, though, sits with the accounting business: the 3,800 existing leads, the tax-debt campaign and new Meta and Google campaigns. Having one person across both means shared tools, one way of reporting, and no gaps between the two.

I'd rather not price this task by task. That would stop me from picking up what comes up or testing new ideas. Instead, I'm proposing a fixed monthly retainer for a clear set of priorities plus day-to-day support, and commission on revenue I bring in.

How I'd work

I'd work like a member of your team, not an outside supplier, for about 27–35 hours a week during Brisbane business hours.

- Priorities: at the start of each month we agree a short ranked list for each business. That list gets most of my time.
- Day-to-day support: I pick up what comes up between priorities. If something urgent arrives, we agree what moves down the list.
- Outside help: when a task needs a designer, video editor or other specialist, I find them, brief them and manage the work. You approve the cost first and pay them directly, with no markup from me.
- Ownership: every account, ad account, page, list and file stays in Qubik's name. I work inside your systems with partner or user access.
- Working with your team: sales handles calls and closing, and your automation specialist handles technical builds. I make sure leads reach them ready to act on.

Priorities for the first 90 days

These are my suggested starting priorities. We'd confirm and re-rank them at our first monthly call.

Qubik AI & Automation

1. Meta and Google lead generation: launch, test, and scale what brings qualified meetings.
2. Landing pages, tracking and the hand-off of every lead into the CRM for sales.
3. Lead follow-up by email and SMS, lead scoring, and clear rules for when sales picks a lead up.
4. Sales materials: a sample diagnostic report and a short demo of a management dashboard.
5. Case studies from the first clients, once they agree.
6. A light LinkedIn presence, and support for reaching larger companies.

Qubik Accounting

1. Reactivating the 3,800 existing leads from November to January, around Black Friday, Christmas and the New Year.
2. Improving the tax-debt campaign: faster first contact, better segments, follow-up, qualifying and booking.
3. New Meta and Google campaigns for core accounting services.
4. A monthly email to engaged contacts, and preparing the April–June end-of-financial-year campaign.
5. Asking happy clients for Google reviews and referrals.

Day-to-day support and time split

Between priorities, I'd cover whatever either business needs, for example:

Qubik AI & Automation	Qubik Accounting
Social posts and short videos	New campaigns as offers or deadlines come up
Website copy and new landing pages	Seasonal offers and email campaigns
Promoting events or webinars	Website copy and service pages
Testing new offers and audiences	Social posts
Proposal and pitch materials for sales	Call scripts and email templates for the team
One-off reports and analysis	One-off reports and analysis

Time split: about 55% AI & Automation and 45% Accounting to start. We'd review it monthly and shift time toward whichever business has the bigger opportunity at the time.

Working rhythm and reporting

- Monthly: a 45-minute call with you to review results, agree the priorities for each business and set the time split.
- Weekly: a short report for each business every Monday, taken from the CRM: spend, leads by source, qualified leads, cost per qualified lead, meetings held, proposals, new clients and cash collected, plus what I'm changing next week.
- Quarterly: a review of goals, results, the retainer and the time split.
- Day to day: available during Brisbane business hours on your usual messaging and email, and on calls with sales or your automation specialist as needed.

Commercials

I'm proposing a fixed retainer of ₹4,00,000 a month for both businesses, plus commission on cash Qubik collects from clients I bring in. Of the retainer, ₹1,50,000 is for Qubik Accounting, mainly reactivating the 3,800 existing leads. There is no separate setup fee or paid pilot: the first month's setup work is inside the retainer.

How I arrived at ₹4,00,000

The AI & Automation part uses the rate in your job post. The accounting part is added at a lower hourly rate.

Part	Hours a week	Basis	Monthly
Qubik AI & Automation, the role as posted	15–20	The middle of the posted ₹2,25,000–2,75,000 range	₹2,50,000
Qubik Accounting: reactivating the 3,800 leads, plus related accounting campaigns	12–15	About ₹2,300–2,900 an hour, below the posted role's ₹2,600–4,200	₹1,50,000
Total	27–35		₹4,00,000

Across all hours, that works out to about ₹2,600–3,400 an hour, in the lower half of the hourly rate your post implies.

Retainer

Item	Terms
Monthly retainer	₹4,00,000, invoiced monthly and paid in advance
Split	₹2,50,000 AI & Automation · ₹1,50,000 Accounting
Time	About 27–35 hours a week across both businesses
Covers	Everything in this proposal, including setup: priorities, day-to-day support, reporting and managing outside help

Commission: Qubik AI & Automation

These follow your job post, with one addition for the first three months.

Item	Rate	Applies
Qualified meeting the prospect attends	₹5,000 per meeting	Throughout
First implementation revenue collected	5% for the first two new clients each month; 7.5% from the third	Throughout
Diagnostic fees collected	10%	Initial 3-month term only

In the early months, most new clients will start with a diagnostic, and implementations will follow later. The diagnostic line pays for that early work during the first term only. From month 4, implementations carry the commission. If a diagnostic fee is credited against an implementation, the implementation commission is worked out after the credit, so Qubik never pays twice on the same money.

Period	What I expect	Commission mainly from
Months 1–3	Meetings and the first diagnostics; few implementations yet	Meetings and diagnostics
Months 4–6	First implementations from earlier diagnostics; new diagnostics continue	Meetings and implementations
Month 7 onwards	A steadier mix as campaigns mature	Meetings and implementations

Commission: Qubik Accounting (new campaigns)

Item	Rate
New client from new Meta, Google or other campaigns	10% of first-year fees collected

Reactivated leads: choose one option

The ₹1,50,000 accounting part covers the reactivation work. Because the 3,800 leads already belong to Qubik, you can choose how results from them are paid during the initial 3-month term.

	Option A: fixed	Option B: performance
Monthly retainer	₹4,50,000 (₹2,00,000 for Accounting)	₹4,00,000 (₹1,50,000 for Accounting)
Commission on reactivated leads	None	₹3,000 per free review attended, plus 10% of first-year fees collected from clients won back
Suits Qubik if	You want a fixed, predictable cost	You want to pay only when the list produces clients

A free review is the free 30-minute online review offered in the campaign: a look at the person's tax position, cash flow and structure for the year ahead. It counts when they attend and are someone Qubik could take on as a client.

As an illustration, if the campaign brings 6–14 new clients at an average first-year fee of A$4,000, Option B would cost about ₹2–4 lakh over the three months, against ₹1.5 lakh extra for Option A. We'd confirm the average fee together.

How commission works

- It is paid only on cash Qubik has collected, and refunded if Qubik refunds the client.
- The CRM's first-source field decides which leads are mine.
- It applies to deals that close within 6 months of a lead's first contact, including after the contract ends.
- There is no cap, as in your job post. It is calculated monthly and invoiced with the next retainer.

Outside costs: ad spend, software and outside contractors are approved and paid by Qubik directly. I add no markup.

Term: an initial contract of 3 months, with the retainer guaranteed for that period. At the end we review the results together, then either renew for another 3 months or move to a rolling monthly arrangement with 30 days' notice on either side. I'd work as an independent contractor and invoice in Indian rupees.

Next steps

If this works for you, I can start within a week of agreeing terms.

1. A 30-minute call to go through this proposal and agree the first month's priorities.
2. A short contract for the initial 3 months, covering the retainer, commission and your choice of option for the reactivated leads.
3. Access to Meta, Google Ads, the website, the CRM and the email and SMS tools, plus the export of the 3,800 leads.
4. A first-week kickoff with sales and your automation specialist.

I'm looking forward to it.
